DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 1/2/09 have been fully considered but they are moot in view of the new rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 8 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brink USPN 3618608 in view of Kuen USPN 5304162. Brink discloses a unitary disposable incontinence device in that the entire structure presents a unitary device as shown in Figure 1. The device comprises a pad having integral front and back portions, 24 and 22, respectively depending from a back border and a belt integral with the back border of the pad, the belt being disposed exteriorly of the front and back sections (Figure 1). The belt includes two separate semi-belts including a right semi-belt 34 and a left semi-belt 32. Figure 1 shows the semi belts overlapped, which provides a folded portion. The limitations of nested and folded portions occur when in storage and are a function of use. The semi-belt portions of Brink are capable of being folded and nested for storage. The separate semi-belt portions have respective end portions and fastening means 40,44 between the respective end portions provided by receiving material disposed on the belts, which comprises openings and complementary hook material (points) that fit into the front portion has fastening means 38. Brink does not teach adhesive fasteners, but instead teaches hook and loop fasteners. It would have been obvious to use adhesives since it is old and well known in the art that adhesives are functionally equivalent to hook and loop fasteners for securing an absorbent article about the user.

Brink does not teach the separate semi-belts are folded about themselves. Kuen teaches an absorbent article having separate semi-belts having a Z-fold for the benefit of maintaining a releasable bond (Abstract). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the semi-belts of Brink with a Z-fold as taught in Kuen. Doing so would provide a means for extending the belt so that the user can put the absorbent article on without having to unfasten a prefastened article.

Conclusion

3. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
